

News Release

Monday, August 25, 2008

New Name for Max Pacific Power

Vancouver, BC—Max Pacific Power is changing its company name to Syntaris Power Corporation, effective September 2008. This is a name change and re-brand only; the corporation remains intact. Submissions for the BC Hydro Call for Clean Power, due November 25th will be listed under the proponent name: Syntaris Power Corporation. In the coming month, Syntaris Power will be unveiling a new brand with a new logo, website and collateral materials.

“The new brand is designed to be friendly, light and environmentally focused”, says Kevin Boothroyd, Syntaris Power’s Vice President of Corporate Communications and Public Affairs. “We did away with much of the heavy descriptive language and excessive industry jargon that is commonplace in the industry and even developed our own communications style to support the brand, which we call West Coast Business Casual,” says Boothroyd.

About Syntaris Power Corporation:

Syntaris Power Corporation, formerly Max Pacific Power, is a Vancouver-based green energy company committed to sourcing, developing and operating clean, renewable hydro electric energy projects in the Province of British Columbia. With an impressive hydropower development portfolio representing a total of over 600 Megawatts of expected energy, the company’s projects have the potential to bring socio-economic benefits to First Nations and local communities. Syntaris projects are an integral part of British Columbia’s long-term energy strategy to become energy self sufficient and create a legacy of safe, clean, renewable power for future generations.

For more information about Syntaris Power, visit the company website at www.syntaris.com